- “A Place for the Lord” Chronicles:

- I hear the Lord saying that those who have made a place for the Lord are those who hear his voice. These are the same ones who shall bow down and worship in my eternal presence. The Lord is coming back for his spotless bride; therefore, his priest will once again be clothed in righteousness. I can hear the saints shout for joy, as by the Holy Spirit, they are led down the narrow road. The boldness and desperation of God's people bring them into the gates of victory as all of God's enemies have become his footstool. From down in the valley I can hear your voice proclaim, “Be of good cheer!” Yield to the Holy Spirit as he and you build a house for the Lord. Everyone born of his spirit shall know his birth right and will receive his promise: this promise, a present of presence. This present is not for us but must be received. Christ has won the victory and has delivered unto us the spoils. We will forever praise the Lord.
- We have a place for the Lord to hear his voice. Let us bow down and worship, being present in his eternal presence. Let the saints be clothed in righteousness and joy as we travel down the narrow road to go with boldness and desperation to his footstool. And be of good cheer, as we build a house for Him in our hearts. We receive your blessings and are thankful, and we praise you for the spoils.
- Lord, let this house be a resting place for you; that in your presence we might hear your voice clearly; that we might bow down and worship in reverence to experience your eternal presence. May all the priests of this house be clothed in righteousness even as all your saints are clothed with joy. We embrace your narrow road, and we enter it in boldness and desperation for more of you. As we gather before your footstool, we rejoice that we are to be of good cheer as we build our spiritual houses. We thank you, Lord, that we are privileged to receive your blessing and be present in your presence. We receive your blessing as we praise you, Lord.
- We open our hearts tonight to make a place for the Lord. Your presence is here, Lord, as you quietly speak to us, "Hear my voice!" As a corporate House of Prayer, we bow down and worship you in your eternal presence. Your word says, to let "your priest be clothed in righteousness and let your saints shout for joy"; so, we stand in agreement with your heavenly priests and saints. May your narrow road of truth and righteousness draw your people into a place of boldness and desperation for more of your spirit. As we worship at your footstool, we choose to be of good cheer in the fullness of your presence. We will not labor in vain but will instead build a house for the Lord as we receive his blessing. In your presence and present with you, we receive the blessing of provision and abundance that you have provided for us in the richness of the spoils. In all things and in all circumstances, we praise the Lord with all our hearts. In Jesus name, Amen.
