- “A Collision Between Joy & Sadness” Chronicles:
 - Finish with faith and expectations of glory and zeal. Maintain “a steadfastness” in perfect peace. Move! Now Move! Take charge! Heal the land! Live available on the edge with anticipation of great things. Manifest the righteousness of God in everything with your eyes wide open and the truth will stand.
 - Lord Jesus, for this great sadness of the lost, we do pray and speak into them, that we will tell our friends so that this sadness might be apprehended. Let us receive, oh God, that we might speak the name of Jesus. Lord Jesus, as we speak Your name, there lies the value as we remember all that You have done. Surely out of this, oh God, there will be peace on earth. We long for this day that there will be peace on earth. We do ask as a people that You will turn our mourning into joy. Lord Jesus, let every heart prepare Him room, that this great joy might grow and through that growing there will be an incredible rejoicing! And out of that rejoicing it would produce a great faith; and the great faith would change expectations; and these great expectations would create zeal! How in the world can we have such great zeal and peace at the same time, Lord? I don't know. Let this great zeal bring us to a place of great peace in You. And that peace in You comes from the knowledge and the knowing that You are so steadfast. You are the one steadfast thing in our lives. It's our prayer, oh God, that you would pinch us real good to make us move; that You will totally take charge of us as your people, that we might change this country and that it might heal our land. To do that, oh God, truly, as your children, we will have to live on the edge. But as we are living on the edge, the height is almost scary; yet in it, it creates a great anticipation that You will send more of your righteousness. WOW! God, I can see us now standing on the edge of a cliff. Our eyes are wide open with anticipation, knowing that you are going to send your spirit and send revival; and it is in that truth that we will stand. Amen.

- Lord, we thank you that the great sadness that we have for the lost will turn suddenly into great joy as our eyes are opened to the joy of the great harvest of the lost that we can now see on the horizon. Tell all your friends, “Come and see what the Lord is doing”, because even now we are receiving His continual salvation. We place great value on the name of the Lord Jesus. Jesus, we cannot thank You enough for agreeing to come humbly as a baby in a manger that we might through You live and not die. Lord, we thank you for the privilege of remembrance: of remembering You each time we receive communion in Your name. Lord, we declare peace in this season to all the people of the earth and abiding peace that endures the highest highs and the lowest lows. We stand on your word that invites us to turn our mourning into dancing. Lord, ignite hearts this Christmas, that each heart might open to You and prepare Him room. Rejoice then in this season and in the next. May that great faith transition us right into the next year. May our predetermined expectations change to Your expectations. Let us move into 2023 with zeal. May your steadfast love never change. Be with us and cause us to move forward in complete trust in You. Let each of us take charge of our lives and purposes that You have planned for us. Let us be a people who are willing to live on the edge to live and move with our eyes wide open for you Lord, that you might heal our land. May we hold your promises within us with great anticipation and believe that above all, the truth will stand.
- Lord, we feel the great sadness of the lost tonight; and we trust you to draw them here for Sunday morning. We hear your call tonight to “Tell your friends”; and we will answer this call and follow you as you lead us. Because we are always receiving from you in so many ways, we declare that we will show up and we will pray, and we will speak the name of Jesus over the people of this church and this county and this region. We value the times you have given us; but even more so, the times you will give us to share you with the whole world. Grant us the gift of remembrance of your holiness in the gift of your son; and in the gift of peace on earth in our hearts through salvation. Lord, we pray on behalf of New Life Church that you turn mourning into joy in our hearts and our minds, so that we have revelation of walking in the joy of the Lord. We agree corporately to believe you to give us revelation to let every heart prepare Him room like never before. We rejoice in you, Lord, to finish the race; and we declare great faith over your people throughout the world. Give us a change of expectations as we enter 2023; and let us walk out these changes with greater zeal. Help us to walk in a peace in the Lord that your word reveals to us. Give us a resolution to stand steadfast and to move only under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. We take charge to intercede for you to heal our land, and we vow to live available on the edge. We stand firm to move forward with greater anticipation for more of God's righteousness. We vow to walk into 2023 with eyes wide open, and we are excited that we will see in this next year that the truth will stand. Amen.
